In order to help make sense of the so-called Islamic States (‘ISIS’) destruction of the blessed resting places, shrines (maqāmāt), one needs only to briefly consider the doctrine and history of Wahhābī sect.

Among the hallmarks of the Wahhābī fitnah is iconoclasm, the destruction of the resting places of not only the saints (Awliyā’) but also the Prophets (upon them is Allah’s peace), under the pretext of purifying Muslim lands from polytheistic practices.

1802 – An army led by Muḥammad ibn ʿAbd al-Wahhāb (the founder of Wahhabism) and Muḥammad ibn Saʿūd occupy Ṭā’īf and begin a bloody massacre.

1803 – They occupy Makkah al-Mukkaramah and destroy many sacred places and level all the existing domes, even those built over the well of Zamzam.

1806 – They occupy al-Madīnah al-Munawwarah not leaving any religious building, including mosques, without demolishing it, whether inside or outside the Baqī’ (the blessed cemetery). They harboured intention to mausoleum... and grave of the Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah are upon him) but never succeeded.

The Wahhabi army’s destruction campaign targeted, among others: the graves of the martyrs of Uḥud, the mosque at the grave of Sayyid al-Shuhadā’ Sayyidunā Ḥamza ibn ‘Abd al-Muṭṭalib, the mosques outside the Baqī’, the Mosque of Sayyidatunā Fāṭima al-Zahrā’, the Mosque of al-Manaratain and Qubbat al-Thanāyā (the burial site of the Prophet’s incisor that was broken in the battle of Uhud).

1818 - the Wahhabis are defeated by the Ottomans and withdraw from the Two Sanctuaries. The Prophet’s Mosque and the monuments at Uhud are rebuilt as well as rebuilding al-Baqī’ with large dome over the graves of the Prophet’s daughter Sayyidatunā Fāṭima al-Zahrā’, Imām Zayn al-ʿĀbidīn (ʿAlī ibn al-Ḥusayn ibn ‘Alī), Imām Muḥammad ibn ʿAlī al-Bāqir and Imām Jaʿfar al-Ṣādiq.

April 21, 1925, the domes in al-Baqī’ are demolished once more by the Wahhabis along with the tombs of the holy personalities in Maqbarah al-Ma’lā in Makkah al-Mukarramah, where the Holy Prophet’s mother, beloved wife, Sayyidatunā Khadijah, grandfather and other ancestors are laid to rest.

Destruction of the sacred sites in the Hijaz continues till this day.

ISIS/ISIL are a second coming, arguably a more radical strain still and have extended the destruction of sacred sites to other Muslim lands. In 2012, the shrine of Sidi Aḥmad al-Zarrūq in Libya was destroyed and his blessed body exhumed. In 2014 they destroyed the grave and mosque of Sayyidunā Yūnus (Allāh’s peace is with him) and other examples…

In this fatwā, ʿAlā Ḥaḍrat Imām Aḥmad Riḍā Khān al-Qādirī (Allāh’s mercy be upon him) masterfully elucidates the sanctity of Muslim graves.

We pray that Allah the Most Exalted accepts this work and makes it a means of our salvation in both worlds

QUESTION

What do the learned scholars of the religion and Muftīs of the Sharī‘ah (Sacred Islamic Law) say with regards to the permissibility, or otherwise, of deliberately excavating (old) graves in a (Muslim) cemetery for the construction of residential homes according to the Ḥanafī School of Jurisprudence; and would doing so entail the dishonouring and disrespect of the deceased?

Please clarify; may you be rewarded.
EDICT OF MUFTĪ ‘UMAR AL-DĪN AL-HAZĀRWĪ

Allāh’s Name to proceed with, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful.

Only from Him is guidance to the truth and to the path of righteousness.

It should be known that the degree of enmity that the Najdī-Wahābīs harbour against Prophets ﷺ, the Saints (Awliyā’), and even the ordinary folk of the Ahl al-Sunnah, is unfound in any other deviant sect.

It is for this reason the books of the accursed leaders of this deviant sect are filled with vile insults against people who are beloved to Allāh.

Whoever desires (to verify this) can pick up and peruse the corrupt books of Najdī Mullās such as Ismā‘īl al-Dihlawī,1 Şiddīq Ḥasan Bhopālī,2 Khurram ‘Alī,3 Rashīd Gangohī4 and others can see that they are filled with vile insults.

One among such insults which has become the hallmark of this sect is the demolition of graves of Prophets, Martyrs and the Saints.

Ibn ‘Abd al-Wahhāb al-Najdī Intended to Destroy the Blessed Mausoleum

In his book, Faṣl al-Khiṭāb fī Radd Ḍalālāt ibn ‘Abd al-Wahhāb, Shaykh Aḥmad al-Baṣrī writes:

منه أنه صحب أنه يقول لو أقدر على حجرة الرسول صلى الله عليه و سام فدمتها

“Amongst those (evil utterances) that he truly uttered is that he (Muḥammad ibn ‘Abd al-Wahhāb al-Najdī) said: ‘If I ever obtain the power and authority I would destroy the Mausoleum of the Messenger.’”

Ibn ‘Abd al-Wahhāb al-Najdī Desecrated and Destroyed the Graves of the Shuhadā’ and Ṣaḥābah.

In the same book Shaykh Aḥmad al-Baṣrī states:

تهدم قبور شهداء الصحابة المذكورين لأجل البناء على قبورهم ضلالة أي ضلالة

“The Najdī destruction of the graves of the martyred Companions in order to construct over them is a monumental error and misguidance.”

He further writes:

قال بعضهم و لو كان المبنى عليه مشهورا بالعلم والصلاح أو كان صحابيا و كان المبنى عليه قبة وكان البناء على قدر قبره فقط، ينبغي أن لا يهدم لحرمة نبشه و إن اندرس إذا علمت هذا فهذا البناء على قبور هؤلاء الشهداء من الصحابة رضي الله تعالى عنهم لا يخلو إما أن يكون واجبا أو جائزا بغير كراءه و على كل فلا يقدم على الهدم إلا رجل مبتدع ضال لاستنذامه انتهاك حرمة أصحاب رسول الله صلى الله تعالى عليه وسلم الواجب على كل مسلم محبتيهم و من حبهم و جوبي توقيهم و أي توقيهم عند من هدم قبورهم حتى بدأ أبادهم
Some of the scholars have stated that if a tomb has been constructed over the grave of a well-known scholar, a pious individual or a Companion and the tomb is only the size of the grave, then due to the prohibition of excavating the grave, it should not be destroyed, even if the apparent signs of the grave have become effaced.

It should also be known that to build a structure over the graves of the martyred Companions will be ruled as being either necessary (wājib) or permissible without any dislike (jā’iz bi-ghayr karāhah); and (as mentioned above) demolishing the structure is prohibited in any instance - and therefore, only an innovator and a misguided individual would do such an act as it would entail disrespect and violate the sanctity and honour of the illustrious Companions of the Beloved Messenger, when in actual fact, it is incumbent upon each and every Muslim to love and to revere them.

Therefore, how can those who desecrate the graves of Martyrs, (to the extent that, in some instances, their sacred bodies and shrouds have been exposed, as has been admitted to by some scholars of al-Najd in their answers to questions on this subject matter) be referred to as ‘people of respect and reverence?’

[Summarised]

The Unscrupulous Wahābīs Believe – Allāh Forbid! – that the Prophets and Awliyā’ have Died and Turned into Soil

According to these wretched individuals, after the apparent physical death, they (the Prophets and Awliyā’ become bereft of any life, completely insentient and – Allāh forbid! – their bodies have decomposed to become ‘mixed with the soil’.
Mullā Ismāʿīl al-Dihlawī writes in his infamous Taṣwiyāt al-Īmān⁵ (pg. 60) (with regards the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ):

"I too shall die one day and become dust."

When such is the wickedness of the beliefs held by these accursed individuals, not only regarding destroying the blessed mausoleum of the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ and the shrines of the Martyrs and Companions ﷺ, but also with regards to the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ himself, what real need arises to state their beliefs with regards to the mere believing and righteous Muslims.

When the destruction and desecration of the graves of the Muʾminīn, in fact, even of the Awliyāʾ ﷺ, has become a hallmark of the Najdī-Wahābīs, it is not permitted for anyone (in the case outlined in the question) to demolish the graves of the Muʾminīn let alone excavate them to construct homes of residence so that people may indulge in their whimsical worldly desires. This is undoubtedly and evidently a means of

5 The actual name of the book is Taqwiyat al-Īmān, but ʿAlī-Hadrat Imām Ahmad Riḍā Khān al-Qādirī, refers to it as Taṣwiyāt al-Īmān (that which is a means of one losing his faith!). Mawlānā Makhṣūṣullah al-Dihlawī (Ismāʿīl’s cousin) was the first to coin this name.

6 Pg. 42 of the Maṭbaʿ ʿAlīmī, Lahore edition.

We mentioned above in the statement of Shaykh al-Baṣrī that when the Najdīs desecrated the graves of the martyred Companions ﷺ, their bodies and even their shrouds were safe and intact; despite approximately 1200 years having passed since they had been laid to rest. Thus, utter shame on Mullā Ismāʿīl and his ignorant Wahābī followers who hold such ugly beliefs in respect of the sublime Messenger of Allāh ﷺ; beliefs that can never be held by a Muslim. May Allāh Most Exalted, safeguard the Ahl al-Sunnah from their evil company. āmīn.
inflicting great pain upon the occupant of the grave, entails great disrespect and is a violation of their rights – which are prohibited under any circumstances.

According to the Ahl al-Sunnah: The Prophets ֶ and Martyrs and the Awliyā’ ֶ are Alive in their Graves with their Bodies Untouched and Shrouds Intact

According to the Ahl al-Sunnah, the Prophets ֶ and Martyrs are alive (in their graves) with their blessed bodies untouched. In fact, it has been made forbidden (by Allāh) for the earth to consume the exalted bodies of the Prophets ֶ.
In the same way, the bodies and shrouds of the Martyrs and the Awliyā’ ֶ are untouched and intact. They are granted sustenance and provisions (by Allāh).

Imām al-Subkī states in his Shifā’ al-Saqām fī Ziyārat Khayr al-Anām:

وجِيِّتَهَا الْحَيَاةُ الْشَّهْدَاءَ أَكْلُ وَأَعْلَى فِهُمَا الْحَيَاةُ الْمُفْرِدَةُ وَالرَّزْقُ لَا يَجْزِيَ لَنْ لِيسَ فِي
رَبِّيْتِهَا، وَإِنَّمَا حِيَاةُ الأَنْبِيَاءِ أَكْلُ وَأَعْلَى مِنَ الْجَمِيعِ لَنْ لِيسَ فِي
عَلَى مَا كَانَ فِي الدُّنْيَا

“The lives of the Shuhadā’ (Martyrs) are highly exalted. The nature of their lives, sustenance and provisions is not afforded to other than those of the same (or loftier) rank; and the Prophets ֶ have been honoured with the loftiest and most superior rank as they are with body and soul just as they were in this apparent world and they shall remain so forever.”

Al-Qāḍī Thanā’ullāh Pānīpatī states in his Tadhkirah al-Mawtā:

7 Shifā’ al-Saqām fī Ziyārat Khayr al-Anām – The Fourth Section of the Ninth Chapter, pg. 356
Ibn Abī al-Dunyā has related on the authority of Imām Mālik (r.):

The souls of the (deceased) true believers can freely roam wherever they desire. The reference to ‘believers’, here, is to the ‘elite’ among them; The Manifest Truth (al-Ḥaqq i.e. Allāh) grants their bodies the power of the souls, thus they perform Ṣalāh, engage in dhikr and recite the Holy Qur’ān.

The Messenger of Allāḥ saw Sayyidunā Mūsā on the Night Journey, near the red sand dunes and he was stood in prayer in his grave.

On the authority of Sayyidunā Anas ibn Mālik (r. who relates that the Messenger of Allāḥ saw Sayyidunā Mūsā saw the Night Journey, near the red sand dunes and he was stood in prayer in his grave.)

The Awliyā’ have said, ‘Our souls are our bodies.’ What is meant by this is that, at times, the souls of the Awliyā’ perform the actions of their bodies while at other times their bodies - due to their exceedingly subtle (laṭīf) nature - take on the attributes, manifested and function like souls; it is stated that the Messenger of Allāḥ did not possess a shadow (indicating the sublimely subtle nature of his blessed body). Their souls freely roam wherever on earth, in the heavens and in Jannah as they so please. For this reason, the soil of the earth does not consume their bodies; rather, even their shrouds remain unblemished and intact.
Shaykh al-Hind ‘Abd al-Ḥaqq al-Muḥaddith al-Dihlawī in Ashi‘ah al-Lamʿāt, his commentary on Mishkāt al-Maṣābīḥ, states:

“The Awliyā’ of Allāh have passed from this mortal abode (dār al-fanā’) to the abode of immoratality (dār al-baqā’) and are alive in the [presence] of their Lord; they are granted provisions and are in a state of bliss but people

Sayyidunā Shaybān ibn Jisr relates from his father who said: “I swear by Allāh the One besides Whom there is none worthy of worship – I went to the grave of Thābit al-Bunānī with Humayd al-Ṭawīl, or someone else (the narrator, Muḥammad, is not sure). On straightening the [unbaked] bricks over him [his grave], one brick fell and lo and behold, I found him performing Ṣalāḥ in his grave. I said to the one with me: ‘Don’t you see this?’ He replied: ‘Remain silent (and do not disclose this secret to anybody).’ When we had finished straightening the grave, we went to his daughter and asked her what (special act of worship) her father Sayyidunā Thābit had practised. She firstly enquired as to what we had observed that had prompted us to ask this question. So we reported the incident to her. She then informed us that for 50 years he had spent the nights observing Qiyām; and when dawn would approach he would supplicate: ‘O Allāh, if you have granted anyone the opportunity to perform Ṣalāh in his grave, then grant it to me. It does not befit Allāh to reject this supplication.’”

Ibrāhīm ibn al-Simmah al-Muhallabī relates: “Those who would go (to the cemetery) during the early hours of the morning to dig the graves informed me: ‘Whenever we past the grave of Thābit [al-Bunānī], we would [always] hear the recitation of the Qur’an.’” [Hilyat al-Awwaliyā’ wa Ṭabaqāt al-Aṣfiyā’ – al-Ṭabaqāt al-Ūlā min al-Tabi‘īn – Imām Abū Nu‘aym al-Asfahānī] are unable to perceive this.”

Mullā ‘Alī al-Qārī states in Mirqāt:

لافرق لهم في الحالين ولذا قيل أولياء الله لايموتون ولكن ينتقلون من دار إلى دار

“There is absolutely no difference whatsoever in the two states [of life and mortality] of the Awliyā’ of Allāh. It is for this reason it is said about them, ‘They do not die, but rather move from one abode to another.’”

Imām Jalāl al-Dīn al-Suyūṭī, in his Sharḥ al-Ṣudūr fī Aḥwāl al-Mawtā wa al-Qubūr has cited a number of rigorously authenticated reports on the life of the Awliyā’ after their worldly demise; a few of which are reproduced here:

‘Al-Imām al-ʿĀrif  bi’llāh al-Ustādh Abū'l Qāsim al-Qushayrī (may his secret be sanctified) has narrated in his al-Risālah – with his chain of transmission – on the authority of the famous Walī, Shaykh Abū Saʿīd al-Kharrāz (may his lofty secret be sanctified), who relates:

I was (once) in Makkah the Ennobled where at the Door of Banī Shaybah I came across a deceased person lying on the ground. When I looked at him, he opened his eyes, smiled and said:

يا أبا سعید ألم تعلم أن الأحباء أحياء وإن ماتوا وإنما ينقلون من دار إلى دار

‘O Abū Saʿīd! Do you not know that the beloveds of Allāh are alive, even though they taste death? They are simply transferred from one abode to another.”

Shaykh Abū Saʿīd al-Kharrāz further narrates from Shaykh Abū ʿAlī (may his secret be sanctified), who relates thus:

“I laid a faqīr down in his grave. When I opened his shroud, and placed his head on the earth so that the Moṣl Compassionate may show mercy upon his impoverished state, the faqīr opened his eyes and said,

‘O Abū ʿAlī! Do you wish to humiliate me before the One Who has ennobled me?’

I enquired: ‘O my master! Is there life after death?!” He replied:

‘I am alive and so is every beloved of Allāh. Verily, I shall assist you on the Day of Judgement by virtue of the dignity and honour I shall receive on it.”

Imām al-Qushayrī further narrates on the authority of Shaykh Ibrāhīm ibn Shaybān (may his secret be sanctified):

“One of my young disciples passed away and I was overwhelmed with the grief and sorrow by this loss. Owing to this state, as I began to give him the ritual bath and being still overwhelmed by the grief and sorrow, I mistakenly started by washing him from the left side of his body first. (Due to this) the disciple then turned over. I said, ‘My son! You are indeed correct; it is I who has erred!’

Imām al-Qushayrī further relates on the authority of Shaykh Abū Yaʿqūb al-Sūsī al-Nahrjūrī (may his secret be sanctified):

“I laid a deceased person on the wash table, and he grabbed my thumb tightly. I responded, ‘My son! I know you are not dead; this is just a migration from

15 Sharḥ al-Ṣudūr – Bāb Ziyārat al-Qubūr wa ʿIlm al-Mawtā – Pg. 205
16 Ibid.
one abode to the other; now, let go of my thumb!"”17

And also:

“In Makkah the Ennobled, one of my disciples said to me: ‘My spiritual mentor! I shall pass away at the time of Zuhr tomorrow. My master, please take a dirham; buy a shroud and with half a dirham and arrange for burial with the other half.’

At the time of Zuhr the following day, the disciple performed circumambulation (tawaf) of the Ka’bah. Thereafter, when he moved away from the Ka’bah and lied down to rest, he indeed passed away.

When I lowered him into his grave, he opened his eyes and I asked him, ‘Is there life after death?’ To which he replied:

َّإِنَّا حَيّ وَكُلُّ مُحْبِبٌ اللَّهِ حَيّ

‘I am alive and so is every Friend of Allāh.’””18

DECEASED MUSLIMS FEEL THE PAIN OF INAPPROPRIATE ACTIONS

Notwithstanding the fact that the bodies and shrouds of ordinary Muslims may not remain intact, they still experience pain and become distressed when someone sits on their graves or even when someone leans on them. The deceased are also troubled by the sound of shoes in the graveyard. This has undoubtedly been proven from authentic Aḥādīth.

Al-Ḥākim and al-Ṭabarānī relate on the authority of Sayyidunā ʿUmārah ibn Ḥazm ٱ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ ـ who reports:

17 Ibid.
18 Sharḥ al-Ṣudūr – Bāb Ziyārat al-Qubūr wa Ibn al-Mawtā – Pg. 86
“The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ once saw me sat on a grave and thus instructed:

وَأَمَّنَّكَ ۖ لَا تُؤْذِي صَاحِبَ الْقُبُورِ وَلَا يَؤْذِيُكَ

"O he who sits upon the grave, get off it; do not harm the person in the grave and let him not harm you either.””\(^{19}\)

Imām Saʿīd ibn Manṣūr ﷺ narrates in his Sunan: “Someone once asked Sayyidunā ʿAbdullāh ibn Masʿūd ﷺ on the ruling of one placing his foot on a grave. Sayyidunā ʿAbdullāh ibn Masʿūd ﷺ replied:

وَأَمَّنَّكَ ۖ لَا تُؤْذِي صَاحِبَ الْقُبُورِ وَلَا يَؤْذِيُكَ

"Just as I dislike hurting a believer if he is alive, I dislike hurting him after his death.””\(^{20}\)

Imām Aḥmad ﷺ narrates the following Ḥadīth in his Musnad with a chain of transmission (graded Ḥasan) on the authority of Sayyidunā ʿAmr ibn Ḥazm ﷺ who relates:

وَأَمَّنَّكَ ۖ لَا تُؤْذِي صَاحِبَ الْقُبُورِ وَلَا يَؤْذِيُكَ

"The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ saw me leaning against a grave and so he said, ‘Do not cause pain to the occupant of this grave’ (or, he said,) ‘Do not discomfort him.’”\(^{21}\)

The pain and discomfort experienced by occupants of the grave was perceived by the great Tābiʿīn (Successors) and other righteous scholars who were people of spiritual insight.

Ibn Abī al-Dunyā narrates from Sayyidunā Abū Qilāba al-Baṣrī:

\(^{19}\) al-Mustadrak – al-Hākim – Kītāb Maʿrifah al-Sahābah, Dhikr ʿUmārah ibn Hazm al-Anṣārī, Ḥadīth #6502. Also cited by Imām al-Suyūṭī in his Sharḥ al-Ṣudūr – Bāb Taʿadhīhī bi-Sāʾir Wajāh al-Adhā – Pg. 296

“I was once travelling from al-Shām to al- Baṣrah. One night we camped in a moat. I performed the ritual ablation (wuḍū’) and offered two units (rak’ah) ṣalāh. Thereafter, I slept while resting my head on a grave. When I awoke, I saw the occupant of the grave, who reproached me saying,”

لقد آذيتني منذ الليلة

“O person! You have inflicted pain upon me all night!”

Imām al-Bayhaqī in his Dalā’il al-Nubuwah and Imām Ibn Abī al-Dunyā both narrate from Sayyidunā ʿUthmān al-Nahdī, who relates from Sayyidunā Ibn Mīnā al-Tābi’ī, who narrates thus:

“I once went to the graveyard and after offering two rak’ahs (nafl) ṣalāh, I laid down to rest. By Allāh! I was (still) wide awake when I heard the occupant of a grave call out,”

ثُم فقد آذيتني

‘Get up (and move) as you are inflicting pain upon me!’

Al-Ḥāfiẓ Ibn Mandah relates from Imām Qāsim ibn Mukhaymarah that the latter said:

“I would rather a lance pierced my foot than to tread on a grave.’

And he further relates, ‘A person once placed his foot on a grave. He heard, whilst in a wakeful state,”

اليك عني يا رجل لا تؤذني

‘O person! Move away from me; do not cause me pain.’

Imām al-Shurunbulālī writes in Marāqīy al-Falāḥ:

“My teacher, Shaykh Muḥammad ibn Ahmad Ḥamawī Ḥanafī informed me, ‘The deceased are troubled by the sound of the shoes.’”

It is for this reason, the jurists [fuqahā’] of the Ḥanafī School have ruled that to sit, sleep on, or to erect a house, upon a grave, or to relieve oneself on or in the vicinity of a grave, are all prohibitively disliked (makrūh taḥrīmī) and close to ḥarām (unlawful).

Furthermore, it is stated in al-Fatāwā al-ʿĀlamgīriyyah:

ویکره أن یبنی علی القبر أو یقعد أو ینام علیه أو یطأ علیه أو یقضی حاجة الإنسان من بول أوغائط

“To construct a building (directly) on top of a grave, or to sit, sleep, or to tread upon one, or to relieve oneself on (or near) one, are all acts which are prohibitively disliked (makrūh taḥrīmī).”

Imām (Amīn ibn Ṭāḥī) al-Shāmī in his ḥāshiyah (marginal notes) on al-Durr al-Mukhtār, while citing proofs for the above ruling, states:

لأن الموت يتآذى بما يتآذى به الحي

“This is because those things that cause pain and discomfort to the living also do so to the deceased.”

In fact, al-Daylamī narrates with his chain on the authority of Umm al-Mu’mīnin Sayyidatunā ʿĀ’ishah al-Ṣiddīqah al-Dīn, a report which clearly describes this ruling:

The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ said:

الموت يؤذيه في قبره ما يؤذيه في بيته

“Whatever causes pain and discomfort to a person in this abode, inflicts pain and causes discomfort to him in the grave.”

Ibn Abī Shaybah narrates in his al-Muṣannaf on the authority of Sayyidunā ʿAbdullāh ibn Masʿūd ﷺ:

أذى المؤمن في موته كاذاه في حياته

“Hurting a believer after his death is the same as hurting him when he was alive.”

It is as evident as the midday sun, that excavating graves and then constructing homes upon them includes all of the above actions, which undoubtedly entails disrespect of the deceased and causing pain to them; something which is absolutely impermissible according to the Ḥanafī School of Jurisprudence.

If someone objects citing Imām al-Zaylaʿī from his commentary on Kanz:

ولو بلى الميت وصار ترابا جاز دفن غيره في قبره وزرعه والبناء عليه

“If a grave is so old that the corpse has completely disintegrated in the soil, it is permissible to bury another dead body or to cultivate crops on it or to

29 al-Firdaws bi-Ma’thūr al-Khiṭāb #754, Vol. 1, Pg. 55
31 Tabyīn al-Ḥaqāʾiq sharḥ Kanz al-Daqāʾiq, Fakhr al-Dīn ʿUthmān ibn ʿAlī al-Zaylaʿī, d.743 AH.
The answer to this objection is:

Firstly:

This statement of Imām al-Zaylaʿī contradicts the aforementioned Aḥādīth and narrations, and hence is unacceptable.

Secondly:

Imām al-Shurunbulālī has refuted this statement of Imām al-Zaylaʿī in his Imdād al-Fattāḥ, citing narrations that contradict him, hence it is not deemed an actionable opinion.

Imām al-Shurunbulālī states in Imdād al-Fattāḥ:

قال في الإمداد: ويفالله ما في التتارخانية: إذا صار الميت ترابا في القبر يكره
دفن غيره في قبر لأن الحرمة باقية الحَرْمِ

“…and there is a contrary opinion in al-Tāṭārkhāniyyah. (Despite the position of ʿAllāma al-Zaylaʿī) it still remains that to bury another deceased in a grave where the corpse of the deceased has decomposed is makrūh (taḥrimī) as this is contrary to the requisite respect and sanctity of the deceased which still remains even at that point (when the corpse has decomposed).”

This position is fortified by what Imām ʿAbd al-Ghanī al-Nāblusī has mentioned in his al-Ḥadīqah al-Nadiyyah sharḥ al-Ṭarīqah al-Muḥammadiyyah:

معناه أن الأرواح تعلم بترك إقامة الحرمة وبالاستهانة فتتأذى بذلك

“The meaning of the deceased experiencing pain due to one leaning on the grave is that the souls perceive and know that the person has shown inadequacy in respecting

33 Radd al-Muḥtār with reference to Imdād al-Fattāḥ – Bāb Ṣalāt al-Janā‘īz – Vol. 6, Pg. 367

“….by this, it most probably means that the soul of the deceased is displeased by his grave being leaned upon because there is disrespect of it (the soul) in doing so.”

When merely leaning on a grave entails causing discomfort, disrespects, and violating the rights of the deceased, then surely, ploughing and constructing upon it are a greater means of discomforting the deceased and violating their rights.

Thirdly:

We question the Najdī-indoctrinated objector, ‘How do you know that the corpse has indeed completely decomposed to such an extent that not even the bones remain?’ For at this stage the grave remains unexcavated, and there is no mention in the Glorious Qurʾān or Sunnah that specifies the passing of a particular period of time after which the corpse will have become decomposed and completely mixed into the soil.

In fact, bones, even entire bodies, still fully intact have been seen many times in ancient graves that have become exposed. From the headstones, it was apparent that these graves were around 300-400 years old. Thus, it is absolutely impermissible to commit a prohibited act due to an obscure report without a valid Islamic proof and necessity.

Suppose one objects that in densely populated cities, such as Bombay (Mumbai), existing graves are, in fact, dug open for others to be buried; why would such practices be customary if this entailed dishonouring the existing occupant?

The answer to this objection is: In cities there is severe shortage of space in burial. There is not enough space to bury the dead in individual graves. Thus, it is permitted due to necessity:

الضرورات تبیح المحظورات

“Necessity makes the prohibited permissible,”\(^{36}\) is a unanimously accepted principle of Islamic Jurisprudence.

In support of this, it is stated in al-Kabīrī sharḥ al-Munyah:\(^{37}\)

ولا يحفر قبر لدفن آخرما لم بيل الأول فلم يبق له عظم إلا عند الضرورة بأن لم يوجد مكان سواء

“An existing grave should not be excavated in order to bury another person, until the body of the buried person has not decomposed completely to the extent even the bones have perished. However, in times of necessity, a grave can be excavated where, for example, there is absolutely no alternative space available for burying the deceased.”\(^{38}\)

In conclusion – under the circumstances stated in the question - it is impermissible according to the Ḥanafī school of Jurisprudence to excavate the graves in order to construct buildings upon them. Undoubtedly, doing so would entail dishonouring the deceased; which is impermissible.

In Mufīd al-Mustafīd with reference to Mafātīḥ al-Masāʾil it states:

“It still remains makrūh to bury another deceased in a grave even if the deceased’s body has decomposed and turned into soil, as the respect and sanctity of the deceased still remains.”

Furthermore, it is also stated in the aforementioned book:

“It is impermissible for anyone to construct a house or Masjid on a grave as the rights over this space [exclusively] belong to the occupant. For this reason, it is also impermissible to excavate graves.”

IMĀM AḤMAD RIDĀ’S ENDORSEMENT OF THE EDICT

Allāh’s Name to proceed with, the Most Affectionate, the Most Merciful.

All praise to Allāh, Who made this earth a repository; He Who bestowed honour upon believers in their lives and after death; He Who made their death, a relief and solace, and forbade disrespecting them – and prohibited doing so.

May peace and salutations be upon the blessed one who, by his gracious favours and endowments (bāqiyyah), has quenched us with exceedingly sweet water to drink; and who gave us such mighty proofs that render [opposing] proofs subdued and worthless for negation and affirmation; and who granted the believers endless respect and honour, without a predetermined duration; and made the believers great in nobility even if they turn to bones; and who has forbidden causing them pain and discomfort even though their remains may become scattered; and upon his Household, Companions, kinsfolk and group, who are honoured in the Sight of Allâh, collectively and individually.

May Allâh grant the answerer a great and abundant reward.

The clear and distinct answer of Mawlânâ Mawlawî Muḥammad ʿUmar al-Dîn – he of many virtues and excellences (Jâmiʿ al-Faḍâʾîl), eradicator of vice (Qâmiʿ al-Radhâʾîl), supporter of the Sunnah (Hâmî al-Sunan) and the obliterator of strife and dissension (Mâḥî al-Fitan) - is sufficient and complete. (May Allâh make him a manifestation of his name, ‘Amar al-Dîn\(^{41}\); and through his efforts and supervision ‘Umr al-Dîn\(^{42}\).)

ʿamar with ġa'jah on both ayn and meem means: to live long. see taj 13/127. also to hold fast unto it [lazima]; also to rehabilitate [ʿamara l kharab] taj 13/129.

umr with Dammah on ayn and jazm on meem means "aid, help" [naSr] see taj 13/140 allahazrat here is saying:

first is amaruddin - meaning may Allah ta'ala give him a long religious life, and one who rehabilitates this religion; and by his efforts, umruddin meaning the aid and support for this religion.

allahazrat has used all three - the name is umaruddin or umruddin, the second use is amaruddin and the third is umruddin. [Mawlânâ Abû Ḥasan]
However, by order of the rule, that ‘The one commanded is excused,’ and to increase the benefit of the answer, two supplements are provided herein:

Supplement I: In support of the answerer above [and validation of his position that it is necessary to respect graves of the Muslims and to refrain from disrespecting them; and listing of things that are deemed as hurting the dead.]

If during this discourse, some previously mentioned matters are repeated, then there is no harm, for repetition only increases emphasis and strengthens the impact on the heart.

Supplement II: In establishing the truth of the aspired objective and to dispel baseless objections, delusive and erroneous doubts; to censure the wrong, and to clarify and explain that to erect a waqfī house in the graveyard of Muslims is in itself a ḥarām act, let alone building it for one’s own residence, accommodation or rest! Furthermore, the clarification of Imām al-Zayla’ī’s statement in regards to this shall also be provided.

A copy of two fatāwā issued by this poor person is, by the grace of Allāh, sufficient for this synopsis; and Guidance is from Allāh alone.43

43 Only Supplement I has been translated herein.
Supplement One: The erudite scholars are in agreement that the honour due to a Muslim is the same in life and in death.

The Accomplished Researcher [Muḥaqiq ʿalāʾl Iṭlāq]44 writes in Fath al-Qadīr:

الاتفاق على أن حُرمة المسلم ميّتا كحُرمتّه حيّا

“It is commonly agreed that the sanctity and honour of a Muslim after his death remains the same as in his life.”45

The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ has said:

كسر عظم الميت وأذاه ككسره حيّا

“To break the bones of a deceased and cause him pain is the same as breaking [his bones] when he was alive.”46

This has been narrated in a Ḥadīth possessing a fair (Ḥasan) chain on the authority of the Mother of the Believers, Sayyidatunā ʿĀʾishah al-Ṣiddīqah ﷺ by Imām Aḥmad in his Musnad; and by Imām Abū Dāwūd and Ibn Mājah in their respective Sunan collections.

The above narration is also recorded by Imām al-Daylamī in his Musnad al-Firdaws with the following words:

The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ has said:

الميت يؤذيه في قبره ما يؤذيه في بيته

“The deceased experiences pain and discomfort in his grave by that which would have caused him pain in his house [i.e. in his life].”

Shaykh al-Munāwī, in his commentary on this narration, writes:

أفاد أن حرمته المؤمنين بعد موته باقية

“This means that the sanctity of a believer remains even after his death.”

Sayyidunā ʿAbdullāh ibn Masʿūd states:

أذى المؤمن في موته كاذه في حياته

“To cause pain and discomfort to a deceased Muslim is the same as doing so to the living”

[Narrated by Imām Abū Bakr ibn Abī Shaybah]

Scholars have said:

الموت يتأذى بما يتأذى به الحي

“Those things which cause pain and discomfort to the living also cause pain and discomfort to the deceased” - as has been mentioned in Radd al-Muḥtār and other reliable works.

Shaykh al-Muḥaqiq (ʿAbd al-Ḥaqq al-Dihlawī) in his Ashiʿah al-Lamʿāt cites Imām Abū ʿUmar Yūsuf ibn ʿ Abd al-Barr thus:

“At this juncture, we come to know that anything that causes pain and discomfort to the living will also cause pain to the deceased. This also implies that things that give pleasure to the living do likewise for the deceased.”

50 Radd al-Muḥtār – Faṣl al-Isṭījah’, Vol. 1, Pg. 299
It is therefore that our scholars have clearly stated that it is not permissible to walk on the newly made path in the graveyard - as mentioned in Radd al-Muḥtār citing Imām al-Ṭaḥṭāwī in the latter part of the Book of Purification: “It is Ḥarām to walk on the newly made road.”

Scholars have also stated:

“It is makrūh to uproot the grass in cemeteries; because as long as the grass remains green, it utters praises to Allāh (dhikr), which gives comfort to the dead and Allāh’s mercy descends upon them.”

It is stated in al-ʿĀlamgīriyyah with reference to al-Baḥr al-Rāʿiq:

“However, it is permitted to clear the dried grass and give it to animals. This grass should be taken out of the graveyard, not that animals should be let inside to graze on it.”

The Messenger of Allāh saw a person walking in the cemetery wearing his shoes and said:

“Woe unto you! O the wearer of Taʿif footwear! Take off your shoes!”

Abū Dāwūd, al-Nasaʾī, al-Ṭaḥāwī and others have also narrated with their chains on the authority of Sayyidunā Bashīr ibn Maʿbad “ibn al-Khaṣṣāṣiyyah”, and the following wording of the ḥadīth is according to al-Imām al-Ḥanafi’s narration: The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ saw a person walking between graves in his shoes and so he ﷺ said:

ویحك! یا صاحب السبیتین إلق سبیتیك

“Woe unto you! O the one wearing shoes made of hide! Cast off your shoes!”

Imām al-Qāḍī ʿIyāḍ says:

“The Arabs had a custom of wearing shoes made of unprocessed leather with the hairs unremoved. Processed shoes [without hair] were made in al-Ṭā’if etc. [Hence the words in the first narration, ‘O the one wearing shoes of Ṭā’if.”]

Imām Ḥasan al-Shurunbulālī and his teacher, Shaykh Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad al-Ḥamawī, state:

“The sound of shoes causes pain to the deceased.”

These are his words as cited in his Marāqī al-Falāḥ:

“My teacher, Shaykh Muḥammad ibn Aḥmad al-Ḥamawī al-Ḥanafī, related to me that the deceased feel pain from hearing the sound of shoes.”

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say: The evidence for this shall be presented shortly, from a citation of the Gnostic (al-Ḥakīm) al-Tirmidhī.

The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ has said:

لآن يجلس أحدكم على جمرة فتحرق ثيابه فتخليص إلى جلده خير له من أن يجلس على قبر

“Indeed, it is better for one of you to sit on a hot and glowing ember until his

58 Marāqīy al-Falāḥ – Bā Alḥām al-Janā’iz, Faṣl fi ḥamlihāwa dafnihā, Pg. 233 clothes catch fire and singe his skin, than for him to sit on a grave.”

[Narrated by Muslim, Abū Dāwūd, Nasāʾī and Ibn Mājah on the authority of Sayyidunā Abū Hurayrah ﷺ]

Sayyidunā ʿUmārah ibn Ḥazm ﷺ narrates: “The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ saw me sitting on a grave and he ﷺ said:

“O who sits on the grave – get down. Do not trouble the dweller in the grave, and nor will he hurt you.”

Al-Ṭahāwī narrates in his Maʾānī al-Āthār and al-Ṭabarānī in his al-Muṣjam al-Kābīr with a Ḥasan chain; and al-Ḥākim, and Ibn Mandah narrate on the authority of Sayyidunā ʿUmārah ibn Ḥazm ﷺ, who reports:

“O who sits on the grave – get down. Do not trouble the dweller in the grave, and nor will he hurt you.”

Al-Ṭahāwī narrates in his Maʾānī al-Āthār and al-Ṭabarānī in his al-Muṣjam al-Kābīr with a Ḥasan chain; and al-Ḥākim, and Ibn Mandah narrate on the authority of Sayyidunā ʿUmārah ibn Ḥazm ﷺ, who reports:

The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ saw me sitting on a grave and he said:

“O who sits on the grave – get down. Do not trouble the dweller in the grave, and nor will he hurt you.”

The narration of Imām al-Ḥanafī has the words: فلأيذيك – “so that, he does not hurt you.”

---

60 al-Mustadrak – al-Ḥākim - Ḥadīth #6502

61 al-Mustadrak – al-Ḥākim - Ḥadīth #6502

62 Sharḥ Maʾānī al-Āthār – Kitāb al-Janāʾiz, Bāb al-Julūs ‘alā al-Qubūr, Ḥadīth #6944, Vol. 1, Pg. 346
Imām Aḥmad narrates in his Musnad:

The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ on seeing Sayyidunā ʿAmr ibn Ḥazm ﷺ reclining against a grave, said:

لا تؤذ صاحب القبر

“Do not hurt the person in the grave.”

[As narrated in Mishkāt al-Maṣābīḥ.]

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say: The interpretation of Imām Abū Jaʿfar al-Ṭahāwī is not in agreement with this Ḥadīth. The prohibition of a specific case does not necessarily mean that it negates the more generic form of that issue.

Al-Shaykh al-Muḥaqqiq (ʿAbd al-Ḥaqq) mentions in his Sharḥ (Ašiʿah al-Lamʿāt):

“Perhaps this means that the soul is displeased by the person leaning against it

64 إِنَّ أَمْرَهُ صَلِّي اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمُ قَدْرًا فِيمَا يُقَذِّرُ الْقُبُورَ أَمَرَ بِاِخْتِناَصِهِ، فَلَوْ كَأَنّ الْمَشْيَ لَمْ نِعَالِ مَكْرُوهًا، وَلَكَيْنَ ما رَأِي صَلِّي اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمُ قَدْرًا فِيمَا يُقَذِّرُ الْقُبُورَ أَمَرَ بِاِخْتِناَصِهِ

Imām al-Ṭaḥāwī says: “The reason why the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ instructed the Companion to remove his shoes was not due to the fact that walking between the graves with shoes is disliked; rather, when the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ saw that filth smeared on the shoes which would dirty the graves, he ordered the shoes to be removed.”

65 The background of this is Imām al-Ṭaḥāwī’s explanation of ‘what sitting’ means. In Sharḥ Maʿānī al-Āthār, Vol. 1, Pgs. 516-7, #2949, he says that some scholars took these Ḥadīths literally and disliked sitting on graves. However, some others said that ‘sitting’ is a euphemism for ‘sitting to defecate or urinate.’ Thus, sitting to urinate or defecate are prohibited, not merely sitting on them. Imām Ahmad Riḍā al-Qādirī is indicating that – while sitting to urinate is a special case of ‘sitting,’ its more generic form of simply ‘sitting’ is not negated.

In other words, even if the taʿwīl of Imām al-Ṭaḥāwī is taken into account, the prohibition for sitting to defecate or urinate does not mean that it is permitted to sit otherwise. The generic case of ‘sitting’ is not necessarily negated because only the specific case is mentioned. And Allāh, the Most Exalted, knows best. [Mawlānā Abū Ḥasan]
the grave and the dweller in that grave feels disrespected and dishonoured.⁶⁶

I (Imām Ahmad Riḍā) state:

al-Imām al-Muḥaddith al-ʿĀrif bi’llāh Ḥakīm al-Ummah Sayyīdī Muḥammad ibn ʿAlī al-Tirmidhī (may his secret be sanctified) explicitly states that this is the very reason for the prohibition.

He says:

“The souls feel disrespected and dishonoured, and are thus ‘pained’ and ‘hurt’.⁶⁷

Sayyīdī ʿAbd al-Ghanī al-Nablūsī has mentioned this in al-Ḥadīqah (al-Nadiyyah) citing from Nawādir (al-Uṣūl): “The meaning of this is that the souls are cognisant of when they are being dishonoured or disgraced and are pained by this.⁶⁸

The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ has said:

أو أخصف نعلی برجلی أحب إلی من أن أمشی لأن أمشی على جرة أوسیف أخصف نعلی برجلی أحب إلی من أن أمشی على قبر مسلم

“I would much rather prefer to walk on an ember, or on the blade of a sword or that I patch up my shoe with the skin of my foot than to walk on the grave of a Muslim.”⁶⁹

[Narrated by ibn Mājah on the authority of Sayyidunā ʿUqbah ibn ʿAmir ﷺ, al-Mundhīrī says that the chain of transmission is good (jayyid).]
Sayyidunā ʿAbdullāh ibn Masʿūd ” says:

لا أطأ على جريمة أحب إلا من أطأ على قبر مسلم

“Undoubtedly, I prefer that I place my foot on an ember than to place it on a Muslim’s grave.”

[Narrated by al-Ṭabarānī in his al-Muʿjam al-Kabīr with a Ḥasan chain, as stated by al-Ḥāfiẓ ʿAbd al-ʿAẓīm.]

It was this noble Companion, Sayyidunā ʿAbd-Allāh ibn Masʿūd ﷺ, to whom someone asked about the ruling on stepping on a grave, to which he replied:

كما أكره أذى المؤمن في حياته فإني أكره أذى أده بعد موته

“I dislike hurting the deceased as much as I dislike hurting a living person.”

[As stated by Saʿūd ibn Manṣūr in his Sunan, as cited in Sharḥ al-Ṣudūr]

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say:

These aḥadīth support our preferred position and indicate that the explanation of Imām Abū Jaʿfar (may Allāh, Most High, have mercy on him) is not appropriate in this place. We take from the commonly accepted books, which rely upon the explicit words of the ḥadīth; moreover, this is the position preferred by the majority of the scholars who have documented that this is the position upon which one should act. Also, the explicit wording of the ḥadīth (rīwāyah) is in agreement with common sense (dirāyah) – and why not?! This is the most famous position, and the most clear and the preferred position of the majority. And therefore, it is the weaker position that is relied upon by Imām Badr al-Dīn al-ʿAynī in his ‘Umdah; so ponder…

It is from these very aḥādīth that our scholars have ruled it forbidden and prohibited to walk on graves, to sit on them, or for one to step on them, without necessity, as such actions contradict the necessity to uphold the sanctity and sacredness of believers, as they entail forsaking their respect and they result in dishonouring and disrespecting them.

Al-Imām al-Aʿẓam Abū Ḥanīfah has ruled it makrūh (taḥrīmī) to tread upon, sit, sleep, or to relieve oneself on graves. [al-Nawādir, al-Tuḥfah, al-Badāʾī, al-Muḥīṭ. Ibn Amīr al-Ḥājj has stated likewise in his al-Ḥalbah]

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say:

When karāhah (dislike) of an act is mentioned without qualification, then it is karāhat al-taḥrīm (prohibitively disliked) as clarified by the jurists. This is affirmed by the prohibition

---

72 Imām Aḥmad Riḍa Khān’s footnote:
Without necessity – a circumstance of ‘necessity’ or ‘need’ would arise, for example, a grave has to be dug or a dead body has to be buried, but there are graves surrounding the place. In such a case, it is permissible to step on those graves due to necessity. Even then, one should try to avoid stepping on graves as much as possible, preferably one should be barefoot and one should pray and seek forgiveness for the inhabitants of those graves (on which one would likely step).

In the marginalia of Shaykh al-Ṭaḥṭāwī on Marāqīy al-Falāḥ, citing from the Sharḥ of Mishkāt al-Maṣābīḥ, it mentions: “It is not disliked to walk over graves due to necessity such as burying a dead body etc.” and in al-Sirāj: “If there is no other way except by crossing the grave, it is permitted to walk upon it due to necessity.” [Ḥāshiyat al-Ṭaḥṭāwī ʿalā Marāqīy al-Falāḥ – Faṣl fi Ziyārat al-Qubūr, pg. 411] mentioned in the ḥadīth, based on causing pain to the deceased; and causing pain is Harām. This is what we profess as our religion even if there are other opinions in the matter.

It has been mentioned in the marginalia (ḥāshiyah) of al-Ṭaḥṭāwī on the Sharḥ of Nūr al-Īḍāh,\(^ {74}\) with reference to al-Sirāj al-Wahhāj:

“If there is no other way but to have to pass over the grave, then it is permissible to do so by virtue of the necessity that exists.”\(^ {75}\)

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say:

This also proves our stated position that the karāḥah of such an action (when no necessity exists) is taḥrīm, as by consensus, al-mafhūm al-mukhālif\(^ {76}\) are considered and taken into account, in the narrations and statements of the scholars. Thus, it is understood that to walk on graves, without necessity, is impermissible, and that the lowest level of impermissibility is karāḥat al-taḥrīm.

Sayyidī ʿAbd al-Ghanī al-Nablusī states in al-Ḥadīqah al-Nadiyyah:

“My honourable father – may Allāh Most High shower mercy on him – stated in his sharḥ on al-Durar:

“To walk over graves is makrūh due to the Ḥadīth transmitted on the authority of Sayyidunā ʿAbdullāh ibn Masʿūd ” [citing the Ḥadīth above].”\(^ {77}\)

Imām al-Nāblusī further cites from al-Muḥīṭ:

“To walk on graves ‘by foot’ or to sit on them is makrūh.”

I (Imām Ahmad Riḍā) say:

He added ‘by foot’ so that it is not taken to mean intercourse.

I (Imām Ahmad Riḍā) say:

Engaging in intercourse (on the graves) is also makrūh. Rather, its dislikability (karāhah) is greater as such an action on a grave entails greater disrespect and impertinence; in the same way as engaging in such an act on the roof of a mosque would entail.

Furthermore, this also has the presence of heedlessness of death. Thus, his clarification by adding ‘foot’ also includes prohibition of sexual intercourse by way of dalālat al-naṣṣ; not that he excludes it, or considers the latter as acceptable. Thus it should be understood.

Imām al-Nāblusī cites with reference to Jāmiʿ al-Fatāwā:

“The duṣṭ upon the grave is the right of the buried person and it is not permissible to walk upon it.”

He further quotes al-Mujtabā: “It is disliked (Makrūh) to walk on graves. ³⁴²

In Shirʿat al-Islām and its commentary it states: “It is from the Sunnah to avoid walking on graves wearing shoes, as the Messenger of Allāh disliked doing so.”³⁴³

It has been narrated from Imām Shams al-Aʿimmah (Abū Muḥammad ʿAbd al-ʿAzīz) al-Ḥalwānī that he regarded it as Makrūh.³⁴⁴

It has also been narrated from Imām ʿAlī al-Turkmānī who said: “One shall be sinful by walking upon graves as the ‘top’ of the grave is the right of the buried person.”³⁴⁵

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say: This also substantiates our verdict of the action being makrūh taḥrīmī:

1. As an act graded as makrūh tanzīhī, entails no sin; and that such an act is merely khilāf al-awlā (an act which is contrary to that which is preferred in that instance).

2. In order to highlight that the action is permissible (bayān al-jawāz), sometimes the Messenger of Allāh would have deliberately performed that action; and Prophets are infallible (maʿṣūm), they cannot commit sins deliberately.

3. Furthermore, it is impermissible to do an act which entails a sin; therefore, what is the point of highlighting the permissibility by doing it deliberately?

³⁴² Ibid.
³⁴³ Ibid.
³⁴⁴ Ibid.
³⁴⁵ Ibid.
4. Furthermore, they (the jurists) explicitly mention that it entails permissibility (ibāḥah)86 as mentioned in the Kitāb al-Ashribah of Radd al-Muḥtār with reference to (the fatāwā of) Abū’l Sa’ūd.

5. The scholars refer to the action with the expression of “no harm in it” (nafy al-ba’s)87; and which harm is greater than sin?

6. Furthermore, it is necessary (wājib) to forsake an actions that leads to sin; and the action which is obligatory to forsake is closer to being harām and this is the meaning of prohibitively disliked (karāhat al-taḥrīm).

7. Also, the jurists have said that a person committing a disliked action (makrūh tanzīhī) is not reproached, as mentioned in al-Talwīh.

Notwithstanding the above, our belief is that verily Allāh Most High can punish any transgression howsoever small.

By the grace of Allāh, these are the seven eloquent proofs refuting the mistake of a contemporary scholar88 in his epistle on smoking, wherein he said that makrūh tanzīhī is from the minor sins (ṣaghā’ir); this opinion is a flagrant error and a grave mistake.

However, the author of al-Baḥr has expressly said that (only) a prohibitively disliked (makrūh taḥrīmī) action is a minor sins; so affirm this and do not veer away without thinking.

It has been mentioned in Nūr al-Īḍāh and in its commentary, Marāqīy al-Falāḥ:

ندب زیارتها من غیر أن یطأ  القبور
“It is recommended to visit the graves but the graves should not be trodden upon.”

It has also been mentioned in Marāqīy al-Falāḥ:

“It is makrūh to tread over graves as this entails disrespect.”

Qāḍī Khān states: “If a person enters a cemetery and finds a path in it which he thinks has been newly built, he should not walk on it. If such a thought does not enter his mind, then there is no harm in walking on it.”

[Summarised]

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say:

This is another proof for the position we have preferred; because he said that it would not be disliked contingent to a thought entering his mind that it was a path made upon a grave; in other words, if the thought entered his mind, then it would be impermissible.

The impermissibility has been explicitly mentioned by (Ibn ʿĀbidīn) al-Shāmī and al-Ṭaḥṭāwī and other erudite scholars from the Ḥanafi jurists.

Shaykh Ismāʿīl al-ʿNāblusī states in his ḥāshiyah on al-Durar wa’l Ghurar:

89 Marāqīy al-Falāḥ – Faṣl fī Ziyārat al-Qubūr, Pg. 340
90 Marāqīy al-Falāḥ – Faṣl fī Ziyārat al-Qubūr, Pg. 342
“There is no harm whatsoever in visiting graves and making supplications for the deceased on the condition that the graves are not trodden upon, as mentioned in al-Badā’i’ and al-Multaqaṭ.”

It is stated in al-Ṭarīqah al-Muḥammadiyyah:

“From the perditions [āfāt] of the feet is to walk over graves.”

The great Imām and Verifier, [Kamāl al-Dīn ibn al-Humām], criticises those who cross over other graves to reach the graves of their relatives. In such a situation, one should stop where the graves start and pray standing there, rather than stand at the graveside (as this will entail walking over other graves).

It has accordingly been stated in al-Fath [al-Qadīr]:

“It is makrūh to sit or walk on a grave. It is therefore makrūh for someone to tread upon the graves of others to reach those of his family and relatives.”

The great Imām, Muḥaddith, Ḥāfiẓ al-Ḥadīth Abū Bakr ibn Abī’d Dunyā narrates with his chain on the authority of Sayyidunā Abū Qilāba:

“I was returning to al-Baṣrah from al-Shām when I alighted (to rest for the night) in a trench. I performed the ritual ablution and offered two units of prayer. Thereafter, I slept resting my head on a grave. When I woke up, I heard the occupant of the grave complaining and he said, ‘You have been troubling me since laṣl night!’”

95 Sharḥ al-Ṣudūr with reference to Ibn Abī’d Dunyā – Bāb Mā Yanfa’ al-Mayyit fi Qabrīh, Ibn Abī’d Dunyā and Imām al-Bayhaqī (in his Dalā’il al-Nubuwwah) narrate with their chains, on the authority of Sayyidunā ʿUthmān al-Nahdī who relates from Sayyidunā Mīnā, the Tābiīn, thus:

“I went to a graveyard. After offering two rak‘ahs (supererogatory) ṣalāh, I laid down to rest. By Allāh! I was still wide awake that I heard an occupant of a grave calling, ‘Get up (and move) as you are hurting me!’”

Imām al-Ḥāfiẓ ibn Mandah narrates on the authority of al-Qāsim ibn Mukhaymah:

“A person placed his foot on a grave. A voice from the grave called out, ‘Move away from me! Do not hurt me!’

[The aforementioned narrations have been cited by Imām Jalāl al-Dīn al-Suyūṭī in his Sharḥ al-Ṣudūr bi-Sharḥ Ḥāl al-Mawtā wa’l Qubūr.]

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say:

Both narrations substantiate the position held by the majority of our scholars, contrary to the stance held by Imām Abū Jaʿfar and those who followed him from the muta‘akkhirīn [latter jurists].

This lowly servant – may Allāh Most High pardon him – heard from his master Abū’l Ḥusayn [Aḥmad] al-Nūrī (may Allāh extend his life):

“In the vicinity of Mārahrah, the Purified, there is a forest, Ganj Shahīdā(n), where there are a number of martyrs laid to rest. It so happened, that once someone was taking his buffalo with him that at a place where the earth was soft, a foot of the buffalo landed and sunk in. It became apparent that this was a grave. A voice from the grave called out: ‘O man! You have caused me pain. The foot of your ox has landed on my chest!’”

[This is an extraordinary story which hints at the great power of Allāh, the Most Exalted, and the amazing favours upon those who have been martyred in His path.]

Now, by the grace of Allāh Most High, the ruling of this issue is as clear as the mid-day sun.

When the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ:

• forbade sitting on graves, reclining on them or even walking in the cemetery wearing one’s shoes;

and the scholars and jurists have:

• prohibited walking on a newly built pathway in a cemetery so as to protect the graves from being trodden upon; in fact even forbidding one from sleeping near a grave - it is from the sunnah to even refrain from sitting near them; rather, it is adhering to the etiquettes (ādāb) of visitation that one should do ziyārah while standing at a distance.

• permitted feeding animals dry grass (from the cemetery) but on the condition that the grass is cut and taken away and the animals are not let loose to graze (in the cemetery);

• made manifestly clear that the sanctity and respect of a Muslim, alive or deceased, is the same; and informed us that all those things that cause pain to the living, will also cause pain to the dead; and that causing pain to them is haram.

It becomes abundantly clear that this action mentioned in the question (i.e. excavating graves and building houses) is extremely offensive, utter disrespect to the dead, a sin and an act that deserves Divine Retribution. Once such a house has been constructed over a grave, then invariably, this will result in walking over, strolling, sitting, lying, sleeping, treading on, urinating, excreting and engaging in conjugal relations over the graves - not sparing even a moment without immodesty or the infliction of pain upon the deceased – we seek Allâh’s refuge, Lord of the worlds!

Scholars have said: “Verily, wherever forty Muslims gather, there is a Walî among them.”\\(^{98}\) [As mentioned by Shaykh al-Munāwî in his al-Taysîr sharḥ al-Jâmî ‘al-Ṣaghîr]

It is quite clear and apparent that there are hundreds of graves of Muslims in a cemetery, in fact, Allâh knows best as to how many are actually buried in a single grave. Thus, it entails that there shall be the close servants of Allâh amongst these; rather, the existence of such servants of Allâh is more probable from amongst the deceased, as many servants of Allâh who were stained with the impurity of sins whilst physically alive, become pure and purified after their demise.

As the Messenger of Allâh ﷺ has said:

الموت كفارة لكل مسلم

[As narrated by Abū Nuʿaym and al-Bayhaqī in his Shuʿab al-Īmān on the authority of Sayyidunā Anas &. Imām al-Suyūṭī states: (al-Qāḍī Abū Bakr) ibn al-ʿArabī has declared the soundness of this report.]

Also, the Messenger of Allāh & has instructed that the sins and profligacy of open sinners (fājir muʿlin) be made public in his/her lifetime, so that people are sufficiently warned and guarded about him/her.

As narrated by Ibn Abī’d Dunyā in Dhamm al-Ghībah\textsuperscript{101} and \begin{itemize}

  \item \textsuperscript{99} A Muʾmin or a Muslim, when mentioned in the Qurʾān or the Hadīth, refers exclusively to the Ahl al-Sunnah, as indeed, only the adherents of the Ahl al-Sunnah were present at the time of the revelation of the Qurʾān and when the Prophetic sayings (aḥādīth) were being transmitted.

  It is impossible that a deviant or a heretic to have existed at that time, because heresy is the product of incorrect interpretation of an unclear statement.

  When the Messenger of Allāh was present in this world, and had knowledge that was certain and incontrovertible (yaqīn qaṭ‘ī), there was no form of heresy. Because, if any doubt was raised, he would clarify it.

  Now, if the person who brought this doubt would accept the clarification of the Messenger of Allāh, he would remain a sunnī believer; if he did not accept it, he would become a kāfir forthwith. There was no middle-way in his blessed time.

  It is for this reason, when the scholars have deduced the authority of Ijmāʿ (consensus) from the verse: “...and follows a path other than that of the believers...” they have explicitly mentioned that the unanimous opinion of mubtadiʿīn (innovators) is rejected in establishing ijmāʿ as, “that of the believers,” (in this verse) refers to Ummah al-Ījābah. Mubtadiʿīn are not Ummah al-Ījābah, rather they are Ummah al-Daʿwah. Refer to al-Tawdīḥ wal Tawīḥ in the Chapter on Ijmāʿ and other books for further details.

  It is worth remembering this beneficial note, that in Qurʾanic verses or the Sacred Traditions, wherever the word muʾmin or muʾminin is used it refers to the Ahl al-Sunnah. It is their unity and agreement that is meant here. To present such excerpts in a failed attempt to legitimise and legalise the Nadwah movement and unity with all sects and heretics and mutual respect to all [‘love for all hate for none’] is heresy and clear misguidance – and refuge is in Allāh Most High! Whereas, after the death of a person, we have been prohibited from mentioning the sins and evil actions of any sinner however great a sinner he may have been, as he has reached where his deeds have taken him to.

Imām Ahmad, al-Bukhārī, and al-Nasā‘ī all relate with their chains of transmission on the authority of Umm al-Mu‘minīn Sayyidatunā ‘Ā’ishah al-Ṣiddīqah who reports from the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ who said:

whatever they did.

Abū Dāwūd, al-Tirmidhī, al-Ḥākim, and al-Bayhaqī all relate on the authority of Sayyidunā Ibn ʿUmar 🈴 that the Messenger of Allāh 🈴 said:

أذکر محاسن موتاکم وکفوا عن مساویهم

“Mention the good qualities of the dead among you and refrain from mentioning the vile and unpleasant things about them…”

Al-Nasā’ī reports with a chain of transmission graded as jayyid (strong) on the authority of Umm al-Mu’mīnīn Sayyidatunā ‘Ā’ishah al-Ṣiddīqah 🈴 who reports that the Messenger of Allāh 🈴 has said:

لانتذکروا هلكاكم إلا الابخير

“Do not mention your deceased except in a good manner.”

If people do not refrain even after being informed of all this, then their disrespect is not just with the graves of ordinary believers but with Awliyā’ as well. And a person who disrespects or hurts the Awliyā’ of Allāh will suffer a great calamity.

110 In al-Ṭarāʾif wa al-Talāʾid of Imām Muhammad al-Kuntī: “No matter how hard we look, we have yet to find a scholar of jurisprudence who denied and criticised the Sufis that Allāh did not destroy with a disastrous end.”
The Messenger of Allāh ﷺ, in a Ḥadīth Qudsī relates:

Allāh Most High states:

من عادي لي ولا يقد أذنبط بالحرب

“Whosoever bears animosity with a friend (Wālī) of Mine, I have declared war upon him....”

[Narrated by Imām al-Bukhārī in his ṣaḥīḥ on the authority of Sayyidunā Abū Hurayra ﷺ]

I (Imām Aḥmad Riḍā) say:

It is sufficient proof that it was reported in al-Ịjadi‘ al-Ṣaḥīḥ (of Imām al-Bukhārī), even though there was in the heart of al-Dhahabī something about it.

Imām ‘Abd al-Wahhāb al-Sha’rānī quotes his Shaykh, Imām ‘Alī al-Khawwāṣ, in his Latā’if al-Minan: Just as it is imperative to have faith in all the Prophets ﷺ without exception, to believe in them and love them, the same applies to the saints of Allāh. If someone should believe in all the saints except one, without a valid reason, this person thereby has denied all the saints and declared war on Allāh. Whoever rejects the claim of a saint has rejected the claim of a Prophet.

Imām al-Sha’rānī further related: Ibn Labbān slandered Sīdī Aḥmad al-Badawī, may Allāh bestow His mercy on him, and consequently lost his memory of the Glorious Qur’ān and other knowledge. But he persisted in seeking intercession from the Saints, until he was guided to Sīdī Yaqūt al-ʿArshī, who came to the tomb of Aḥmad al-Badawī. He addressed him, “O you father of spiritual heroes! Restore to this wretched one his wealth!” Sīdī Ahmad replied, “Only if he repents.” So he repented, and his wealth (knowledge) was restored to him.

He went on to say: Our Shaykh, al-Shannāwī, informed me that a certain person criticised the birthday celebration (mawlid) of Sīdī Aḥmad al-Badawī (d.1276), so he was stripped of his faith to the point that he felt not the slightest trace of longing for Islam. So he sought help from Sīdī Aḥmad, who told him, “On that condition that you do not repeat your offense.” He agreed, and was restored the garment of his faith. Then Sīdī Aḥmad asked him, “What was it you were criticising?” The men replied, “The intermingling of men and women (at your celebration).” Sīdī Ahmad answered, “That happens during the Ṭawāf of the Sacred House during Ḥajj, and no one is prevented from performing the Ḥajj (because of that).”

The ill-fate of Ibn al-Saqqā’ - a contemporary of al-Ghawth al-Aʿẓam Shaykh ‘Abd al-Qādir al-Ịlānī - in his incident with the Ghawth of his age is sufficient proof for the inherent danger in harbouring enmity towards and reviling the Awliyā’ of Allāh.

In conclusion, it is necessary for these people to have pity on their pitiful selves and fear the Retribution of Allāh, The Vanquisher (al-‘Jabbār), the Subduer (al-Qahhār), glorified is He, and refrain from hurting deceased Muslim. After all, one day, they too will have to die and join the dead in their graves and become helpless and powerless like them. Just as these (living) folk are treating the dead, those in the future will also treat them likewise.

It is a saying of the Messenger of Allāh ﷺ:

Such ajādīth will commence with a Successor (Tābiʿī) saying, “The Messenger of Allāh has said ...” Due to the uprightness of all the Companions, if a Successor does not mention from which Sahābī he received the Ḥadīth, it is accepted. This means that if a Ḥadīth has an acceptable chain to a Successor, and the Successor attributes it to an unspecified Companion, the isnād is considered acceptable.

They have exerted all their efforts in attempting to remove respect accorded to graves of Muslims from the hearts of the general public.
